On The Cover 2020 Exchange Student Representative Meeting (Held 2020/7/18)

The Niigata International Association appoints students who are excelling in cultural exchange activities as Exchange Student Representatives and supports their activities. We canceled the face-to-face appointment ceremony and meeting this year to help prevent the spread of COVID-19, and instead we held an online meeting through Zoom to share opinions and to think about future exchange activities and new exchange methods.

15 Exchange Student Representatives appointed this year participated, including 3 exchange students who had temporarily returned to their home countries of Korea and Indonesia.

There are currently 18,861 foreign residents in Niigata (based on the July 2020 report by the Ministry of Justice). Among them, 10,430 have jobs and work in the Niigata Prefecture (according to a January 2020 report from the Niigata Labor Bureau). Many of them study Japanese on their own after coming to Japan, and many of them also experience a language barrier while living in an unfamiliar area. There are also those who rarely meet with Japanese nationals outside of their workplace and are looking for opportunities to become friends with locals. How are we to communicate with each other in our multicultural society? In this issue, we'd like to talk about two tools for this: Simple Japanese (Yasashii Nihongo) and Pictograms.

NIA Initiative #1: Simple Japanese (Yasashii Nihongo)

Whenever we announce something important for foreign residents on our website or Facebook page, we use “Simple Japanese” (Yasashii Nihongo).

Right now, we are especially focusing on making sure to use Simple Japanese for any information related to the special stimulus payments or COVID-19. Simple Japanese is useful when posting about information that has a lot of complicated expressions.

1. What is “Simple Japanese” ?

Many foreign residents in the Kansai area were injured during the Great Hanshin earthquake in 1995. One of the potential causes brought up was that many of them could not easily access emergency information. Today, “Simple Japanese” is in use on local government websites and pamphlets.

2. How to Use “Simple Japanese”

Original Japanese

Simple Japanese

日本に 住んでいる 外国人の みなさんへ。
いろいろな くにの ことば 言葉で お知らせします。

NIA is still learning too!

“Emergency Support for Foreign Residents”
(Hosted by NIA 2018/12)

We covered Simple Japanese to use during emergency situations.

The “Yasashii” of Yasashii Nihongo
“Yasashii” has two meanings in Japanese. The first is to be simple and easy to understand, and the second is to be kind or friendly.

Key Points of Simple Japanese

- ① Determine what to convey
- ② Keep sentences short
- ③ Rephrase with simple words
- ④ Add furigana for kanji

NIA Initiative #2: Pictograms

There is a way to communicate simple messages with speakers of other languages! You can find messages in pictograms around the Niigata International Plaza. Pictograms are designed to communicate simple messages with just a glance, and you can see them all over the world.

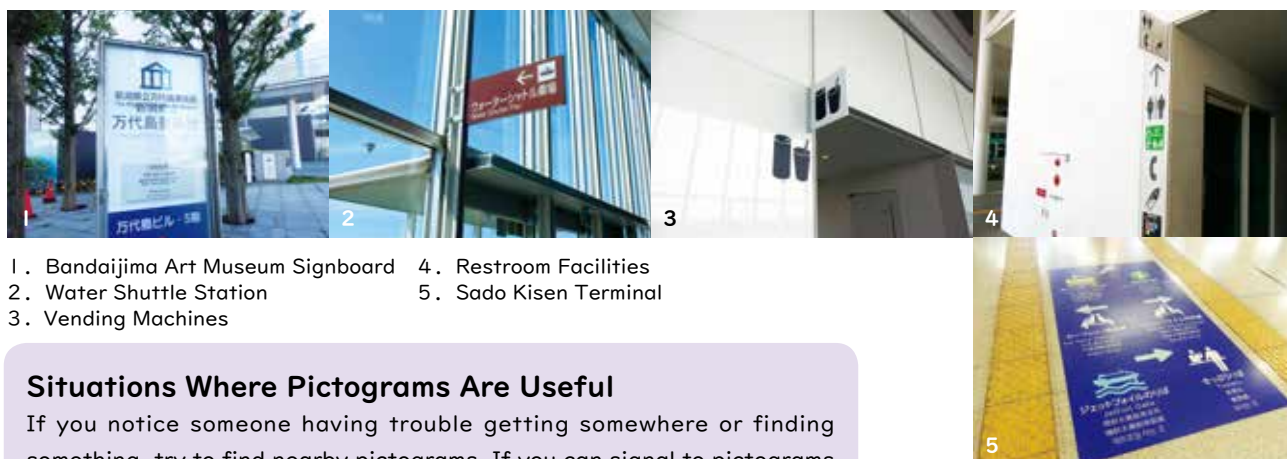

Try Using Them Like This!

You can use pictograms to communicate simple messages to visitors to your facility, such as places where entry is forbidden or requests to use caution.

We looked for pictograms around Toki Messe!

1. Pictograms in the Wild Around Toki Messe

1. Bandaijima Art Museum Signboard
2. Water Shuttle Station
3. Vending Machines
4. Restroom Facilities
5. Sado Kisen Terminal

Situations Where Pictograms Are Useful

If you notice someone having trouble getting somewhere or finding something, try to find nearby pictograms. If you can signal to pictograms with your hands or find a pictogram of their destination on a map, you can communicate even if you do not speak the same language.

2. The Origin of Pictograms in Japan

The first sport pictograms in history were first announced at the Tokyo Olympics in 1964 so that people from around the world could enjoy the games, regardless of what language they spoke. Today, pictograms are used by people all around the world.

What pictograms are around you? Try searching for pictograms in places you live or work!

Pictograms are also a useful tool if you visit another country!
